Welcome to the June issue of the Advertiser Magazine

We are all feeling optimistic and excited as we move into June. Every day more and more people we know have received their vaccines and restrictions are gradually being relaxed allowing us to return, somewhat, to normal. Bars and restaurants are almost back to normal hours. We can now travel anywhere within Spain and, hopefully very soon, foreign travel can resume. It is lovely to see places opening up again and to see a few new faces around. As usual we have a jam-packed issue full of all of your favourite articles. A massive thank you as always to our amazing contributors. Do look out for the book review as the author is our very own, local man, Jose Luis Cano.

We are delighted to have many new advertisers this month as it is a positive sign that business is looking up. As always, we ask that you do your best to support local businesses, especially our advertisers!

Have a great June!

Cheryl & Andrew

BRAD RUNS FOR 'EL PRESIDENTE'

part 5

The final of the Brad Runs for El Presidente series, as the current president has made a number of serious laws to stop me from proceeding, such as lowering speed limits and getting rid of the century old Family Book. I haven't figured out just yet how he's trying to intimidate me, but it's working.

It is a real shame that the Family Book will no longer be used. I spent hours at different official government buildings with my triplicate copies having kids added to the booklet. I almost had another child just so I could do it all again! If we can't use them anymore, I guess I'll have to find something else to put under the corner of my bed drawers to keep them level.

POLICIES ON THE RUN

My ideas about burning all the books and starting the calendar again to coincide with my birth year were both rightfully shot down by my editor. The concept of saying Elvis died 3 b.b. (before Brad) was deemed too confusing.

After realizing history is done and mostly can't be changed, we turned our attention towards the future and how to make it better, or "less sucky", as my oldest daughter says.

Two major policies involved looking after the planet. It's just a feeling I have that this is important, a vibe if you will. I know when we find another one, it will all just seem silly. Encouraging electric vehicles by making all new carparks and have 100% re-charge availability, and existing carparks to be retro-fitted.

The other was a little more obvious, the banning of all single-use plastics, the introduction of bio-degradable plastics and more importantly, facilities that can actually break them down. Plastic is amazing when used correctly, but a 400-year mistake when used to sell individual bananas, after all, they grow self-packaged.

SAYING "FUTURE-PROOFING THE ECONOMY" MAKES ME SOUND SMART.

The setting up of a compulsory, private pension for all workers will certainly proofing future economy the... no, fluffed it. In only 15-20 years-time, workers will be able to retire much more comfortably and the financial burden will start to be lifted from the government. In 30 years-time, the majority of retirees will be self-funded. A golden era for the golden years.

The other position was based on giving new businesses every opportunity to succeed, so they can hire the unemployed, pay them money that they can use to pay for things like rent and Gucci handbags, well I'll assume you know how money works. New companies paying the same tax that decade old companies are paying isn't going to help them develop. It's a simple change that will have huge benefits.

I've gone into more details about the above points in previous articles, so if you'd like to read the full inspirational details, you can view previous magazines online at www.advertisermojomacar.com or find old printed copies in your local hoarders living room.

You never know, a future series may look towards becoming a mayor or president of Andalucía. The money's probably less, but the opportunities for corruption probably higher.

If you have any feedback for me, to dispute, argue, agree, support, harass or to pinch, flick me an email bradh\_os@hotmail.com

SPANISH TAX

Spanish Tax Return time is upon us again and we have sent out our client questionnaires, if you have not received one as yet, please contact the office. Below are a few questions that we have received...

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS:

DO WE HAVE TO DECLARE ALL OF OUR INCOME?

Yes, the law states that ALL income has to be declared and tax paid in the country that you are living in. The caveat to this is that Crown Pensions, UK Property Rental and Royalties, the tax has to be paid in the UK but it still needs to be declared in Spain and any tax paid in the UK will be taken into account.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE IN STATE PENSION AND CROWN PENSION?

A State pension is the Old Age Pension, a Crown Pension is Armed Forces, Civil Service or Local Government Pensions

IS THE STATE PENSION TAXABLE IN SPAIN?

Yes, it is liable for tax in Spain as it would be if you lived in the UK.

CAN WE CHOOSE TO PAY OUR TAXES IN THE UK?

No, if you are a Spanish Tax Resident, then your income needs to be declared and taxes paid in Spain.

WHEN AM I CLASSED AS A SPANISH TAX RESIDENT?

If you live in Spain for more than 183 days in any year, you are deemed as a Spanish Tax Resident.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I DO NOT MAKE A DECLARATION OR ONLY DECLARE SOME OF MY INCOME?

The Spanish Tax Authorities have direct access to the UK Tax Authorities system and are fully aware of your income, if you do not declare or declare incorrectly, the Authorities can go back four years and claim the tax that was due, plus interest, plus they will also fine you.

WHAT ARE THE ALLOWANCES AND TAX LIMITS IN SPAIN?

The Spanish system is totally different to the UK and is based on your personal circumstances, in the UK everyone has a personal allowance of £12,750 and any income above that allowance is taxed at 20% up to £37,000. In Spain there are tax allowances and liabilities for Madrid and your local Authority ie. Andalucia. Once your income figures are entered onto the system, allowances and liabilities are applied according to your personal circumstances and any tax due is calculated by the system.

ARE MY UK PENSION ANNUITIES TAXED FAVOURABLY?

Spanish Annuities are a specific income paid for a specific term, usually three years, UK Pension annuities are paid for a lifetime and so do not fall within the benefits of Spanish Annuities and the full annuity amount is taxable.

Business is not all bad

What started out as a lick of paint, turned into a massive renovation project for our own offices at Pronto Imprenta. Pronto Imprenta at Las Buganvillas is also home to The Advertiser magazine which, we acquired 2019.

Later this year, Pronto Imprenta will be celebrating it's 10-year anniversary. Expecting a slow start, with plenty of time to get things ready, the business was pushed into opening about three months before the intended opening date, purely due to customer's demand. It was then a case of "the shoemakers children running barefoot" as the temporary sign that was erected at the very beginning still remained in place. Almost a year after the business started it was destroyed by the flash floods that devastated the area in 2012. Once again, as our clients demands came before our own, we had to "make do and mend" and our own business image and shop signage was so far down the list, it never even made it onto the list.

Pronto Imprenta has a wide and loyal client base that has been built up over the years. Approximately 60% of our clients are Spanish the remaining 40% being made up of British and other nationalities. Spanish, English and German are spoken by our staff and we can also offer translation services to many other languages.

Our products and services are extensive and the list is constantly growing. Signage and large format printing is the biggest part of our business and we can offer a huge and varied range. We print menus for most of the restaurants in the area and turn out thousands of business cards daily.

This year we added direct printing on wood as one of our services as well as a QR code creation service. QR codes are best known for using to store menus on. However, the possible uses for a QR code are many. A QR code is a code that you scan with your phone, then it performs an action. Such as taking you to a particular website. This is how menus with QR codes work. A restaurant's menu is stored on a website. A QR code is then programmed to take you to that website. However, a QR code can also be programmed to connect you to a WiFi network or to go to a particular Facebook page, to download a digital business card into the contacts on your phone or to rate a particular restaurant on Trip Advisor. The possibilities are many and much of the past year has been spent generating QR codes for our customers.

Another new range of products that were added to our range this year was PPE equipment. Many of our clients required hygiene stations, visors, protective screens and, of course, masks. All of these can be supplied by us and personalised with our customers logos.

We had made the decision back in early 2020 that the business definitely needed more space to operate. We just couldn't continue in the limited space we had available. We decided to take over the entire unit and made arrangements with our tenants, who also needed to expand.

With our new larger space we decided, during the restrictions in early 2021, to give the place a lick of paint. Basically, one improvement led to another. The lick of paint that started in mid-December 2020 became an entire re-fit and change of shopfront that through a massive amount of hard work, took almost five months to complete.

We love our new workspace and are ready to face the new season with our bright and spacious offices.

We would like to take this opportunity to say a massive thank you to all of our loyal customers, both customers of The Advertiser Magazine and Pronto Imprenta. We are most appreciative of your business.

If our guests don't want to have a full meal we offer a selection of sharing plates for them to choose from. What better way to enjoy these warm Mediterranean nights than with friends, good wine and a few plates of delicious food.

ALBONDIGAS MAKES 24 MEATBALLS

This meatball dish can be prepared in advance and warmed up ready to serve.

Ingredients:

500g minced meat - choose the beef and pork mix as it gives a softer meatball.

Salt & pepper

A little olive oil for frying

Rich tomato sauce

A little olive oil

2 cloves garlic

210g carton tomato frito

Tin of chopped tomatoes

Blackpepper

Splash of red wine

Bayleaf

Method: For the sauce

Gently fry the garlic in a little oil for a minute or 2 taking care not to burn it. Add the rest of the ingredients and leave to simmer for 40-45 mins. Adjust seasoning to taste.

Method: For the meatballs

Add a good grind of black pepper and 1-2 teaspoons of salt to the mince and give it a good mix and a squeeze with your hands to mix in the seasoning. shape into approx 24 meatballs.

Heat a frying pan with a little olive oil and gently fry the meatballs for a few minutes turning with a fork to colour on all sides. Put a lid on the pan and reduce the heat and cook for 10 minutes (check a meatball to ensure they are cooked right through). The lid will stop all the juices from evaporating.

Once the sauce is ready, add to the meatballs and gently stir to incorporate. Either set aside for later or serve immediately with crusty bread to mop up the sauce.

LIME AND CHILLI PRAWNS WITH A MANGO SALSA

I allow 3-4 prawns per person or as a starter 5 prawns per person.

Ingredients:

20 large cooked langostino

2 fresh limes

1 whole red chilli deseeded and thinly sliced

1 large mango

1 medium red onion

A handful of fresh chopped coriander

Method:

Peel and de-vein the prawns and put into a dish. Add the thinly sliced chilli and the zest and juice of one of the limes. Cover, refrigerate and leave for at least 2 hours.

Mango Salsa

Peel and chop the mango into small chunks. Add a finely chopped red onion and a rough chopped handful of coriander.

Parsley can be substituted if you aren't a fan of coriander.

Add the zest and juice of the 2nd lime. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. To serve, pile the prawns on top of the salsa and garnish with a couple of lime wedges.

FRIED HALLOUMI WITH A LIME AND CAPER VIAIGRETTE

Ingredients:

1 halloumi cheese

2 tablespoons of well seasoned flour

2 tablespoons olive oil

For the dressing

Juice and zest of 1 lime

2 tablespoons white wine vinegar

1 heaped tablespoon capers, drained

1 clove garlic finely chopped

1 teaspoon grain mustard

1 heaped tablespoon chopped fresh coriander

2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil

salt and freshly ground black pepper

Method: For the dressing

Whisk all the ingredients together in a small mixing bowl.

Method: For the cheese

Slice the cheese, you will get 8 slices from one pack.

Heat the oil in a frying pan over a medium heat. When the oil is really hot, press the cheese slices into the seasoned flour to coat on both sides then add to the hot pan. They will take about a minute on each side and need to be a good golden colour. Serve straight away with the dressing poured over. Perfect served with warm pitta bread.

WARM SEA SALTED ALMONDS

We always like to serve some good olives and some nuts - particularly warm sea salted almonds.

Heat a small pan to a medium heat, add a teaspoon of olive oil and couple of handfuls of unpeeled almonds and plenty of sea salt. Keep moving the almonds so they don't burn until they are hot and darker in colour.

Transfer to a serving bowl and leave to cool for a few minute before serving.

BOOK REVIEW - IDUS

by local author Jose Luis Cano

José Luis Cano, who originally hails from the beautiful Seville, has lived in Mojácar for just over 40 years. He is well known and much loved in the local community. José spent many years working in Mojácar town hall as a councillor. Although his longest role was as the councillor in charge of tourism, he also held the titles of councillor in charge of revenue, Policía Local and the environment.

I was lucky to be gifted a copy of Idus by José, my dear friend, the author. Idus is the second book José has written. He also gifted me a copy of his first book, El Almacén de la Memoria, which I am yet to read. It is written in Spanish and, although I speak Spanish reasonably well, reading a book in Spanish would require more mental exertion than I am generally prepared to invest during my precious free time. I was delighted and honoured to be given a copy of José's second book, Idus, which is written in English.

I usually prefer to read when I have many undisturbed hours ahead of me. However, once I had the book in my hands, had felt the glossy cover, read the sweet and personalised dedication that José had written inside the front cover for me, I just couldn't help but start it, even though it was a "school night". So, late that night, I began to read Idus.

The first thing about the book that delighted me was a beautiful, complimentary bookmark nestled inside the front cover. The story is a very intriguing plot with subtle overlays and undercurrents and, as you would expect from Jose, a lot of hot spicy amorous moments!

The book did what every good book should and kept me hooked.

The timeline swaps from the characters early years to recent events. However, it does so in a very clever way. As the story changed from one timeline to another, I felt a brief moment of disappointment to be leaving the current plot. That however was short-lived as the new timeline quickly grabbed my attention and sucked me in. This is repeated continually through the book. As I read into the early hours of the morning, several times I ended a chapter telling myself "just one more". I read much longer than I had intended to and only stopped long after I should have been asleep.

The colourful characters come to life through the text, they are easy to visualise and interesting. The storyline takes place over three countries and, without spoiling the book for you, it contains one very famous character you will all know.

Several things surprised me about the book. The first being just how well written it is. Obviously English is José's second language but those who know him are aware that he speaks it impeccably. The turns of phrases and expressions in the prose are as if it had been written by someone who had English as their mother tongue.

The second thing that surprised me was just how many things I learned. It's difficult to read most books without learning at least one thing you didn't previously know; however, it surprised me just how much interesting and unusual knowledge I gathered.

I read the entire book over three nights, found myself, during the day, eagerly looking forward to returning to it. I consciously started to slow down my reading as I approached the end of the book as I didn't want it to end. Idus is a brilliant read. It is intelligent, both funny and poignant. There are both hilarious and sombre moments in the story and, as I already mentioned, lots of steamy moments as well!

As I regretfully came to the end of the story, I hoped that José was already working on the sequel.

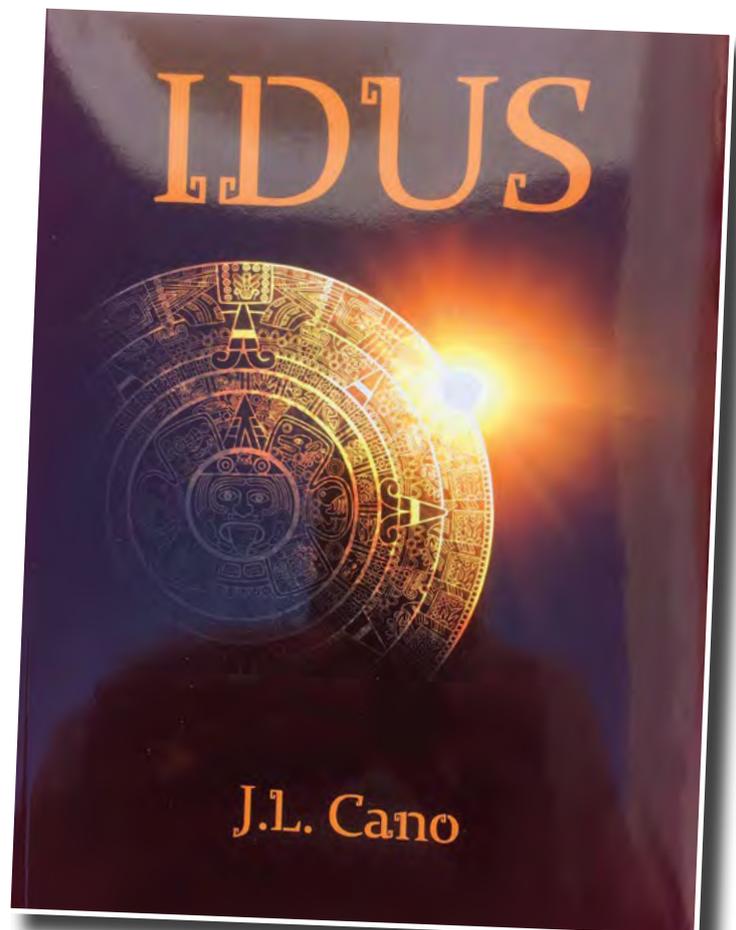

José will be having a joint book launch and signing where you can get your own copy of Idus. The other author at the launch will be our very own contributor, Joyce Vernon, with her book "How to Live after Death". The book launch will take place at Neptunos, Mojacar on the 11th of June at 6pm. Everyone is welcome to attend.

You can also arrange to pick up a copy of the book from José at his home in Mojácar by emailing him at cuqueros@hotmail.com or from Pronto Imprenta at Las Buganvillas.

Book Review by Cheryl Woods

Idus de Marzo - The Ides of March is the 74th day in the Roman calendar, corresponding to 15 March. It was marked by several religious observances and was notable for the Romans as a deadline for settling debts.

Beautiful you

This olive tree is over 1000 years old, and is in the national park of Cabo de Gata. It is easy to reach, with a lovely walk through well worn rocks and weathered hillsides. The information about the tree informs us that it was planted by the Romans. What tales it could tell us if it were able to speak!

I just love trees. They all have different energy and characters just like people, and in this picture, I am just holding the tree and meditating. This tree is beautiful, with all of its gnarled and twisted roots and branches. It started life so many centuries ago as a straight strong sapling, reaching for the morning sun. Life of course isn't always sunny, and we will all be battered and bent by the storms, floods and scorchings of life but a good heart keeps us beautiful like this ancient olive.

We share so much of our lives trying to put down roots and feel secure and safe and use the terms uprooting our lives, and branching out, when we change our homes or jobs.

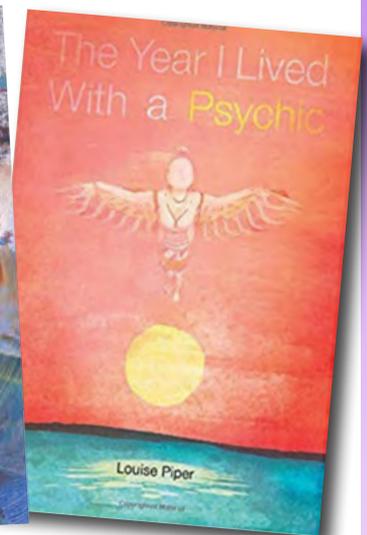

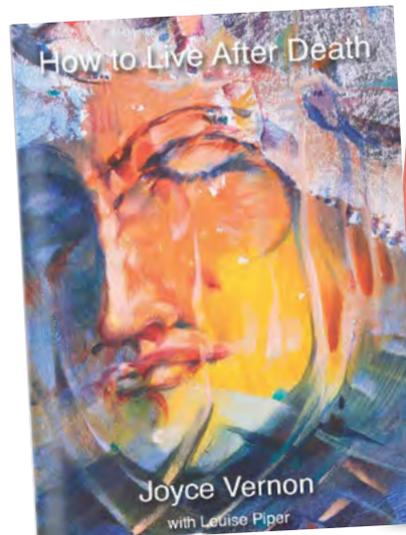

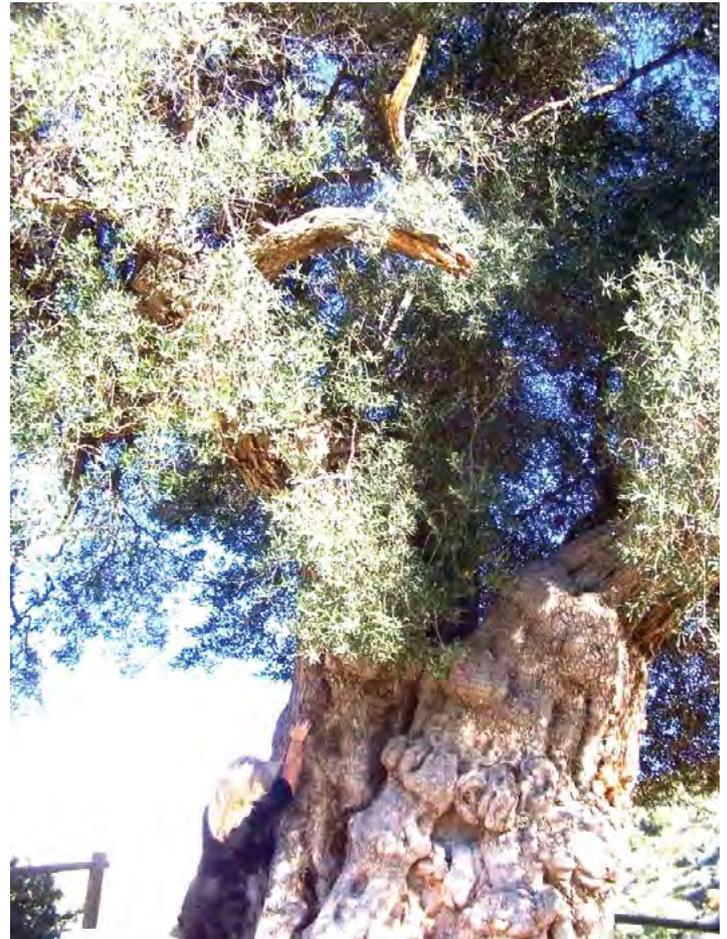

How many of you have fond memories of climbing trees, making rope swings, and if you were lucky, a tree house you loved to play in? Did you ever feel there was someone with you, even though you were alone?

There are so many tales in every culture of spirits of the forest, the streams and the caves and mountains. Tolkien wrote of the Tree Ents in his Lord of the Rings books and, here we have the Indalo man image on everything. It is derived from an image painted on the wall of a cave. This practice of drawing and painting on rocks is seen all over the world, and we can imagine our cave men ancestors around the fire praying to the animal spirits to help them to have a successful hunting expedition. Humans, it seems, have always tried to connect to the spirit world.

It saddens me that children are not encouraged more to spend time in nature, to feel that sense of awe when we look at a majestic tree, a raging waterfall, or a beautiful lake. How detached from reality we are becoming. We are only poorer as living beings by not engaging in the natural world. Please encourage your children and grandchildren to protect the wildlife and the environment.

I have just finished doing a reading for a lovely man, who was visited by his parents, both in the spirit world. Their advice was for him to retire, sell the business and get himself a boat! It seems the man loves the sea and, has wanted a small fishing boat to escape to. He left my house feeling very happy but, I hope his wife doesn't object to the boat ha ha! I am just the messenger!

Life isn't just about working and paying bills. Grab your life, listen to your guardian angel, and enjoy every moment.

- Hair grows back in one spot and falls out in another
- You lose a lot of hair over a short time
- More hair loss in cold weather
- The bald patches of skin are smooth, with no rash or redness. But you may feel a tingling, itching, or burning sensation on your skin right before the hair falls out.

Other factors for hair loss can be pregnancy (during and after), medication, medical treatments and illnesses also when the body goes into sudden shock or stress. People can also develop bald patches when the hair is over stretched when styling and when elasticated hair band or pins are used to keep the hair in place.

Speaking with your doctor in the first instance is always advisable.

Q) WHAT CAUSES PSYORISIS AND HOW CAN I KEEP IT AT BAY?

A) Psoriasis is a common skin condition that occurs when skin cells multiply faster than normal. As a result, the skin cells rapidly move to the surface and die. Raised, red patches covered with white, silvery scales appear on the skin. These abrasions generally appear on the knees and elbows as well as the scalp. The white scales are dead skin that accumulates because the body is trying to produce new skin cells too quickly. Psoriasis can also be found on the soles of the feet and the palms of the hands also occurring along the lower and upper torso areas. Psoriasis does not have a known cure; however, the skin condition can be treated by minimizing the symptoms. If you think you may have psoriasis, visit your doctor or a medical profession to be correctly diagnosed.

Some of the best shampoos recommended for psoriasis to keep it at bay:

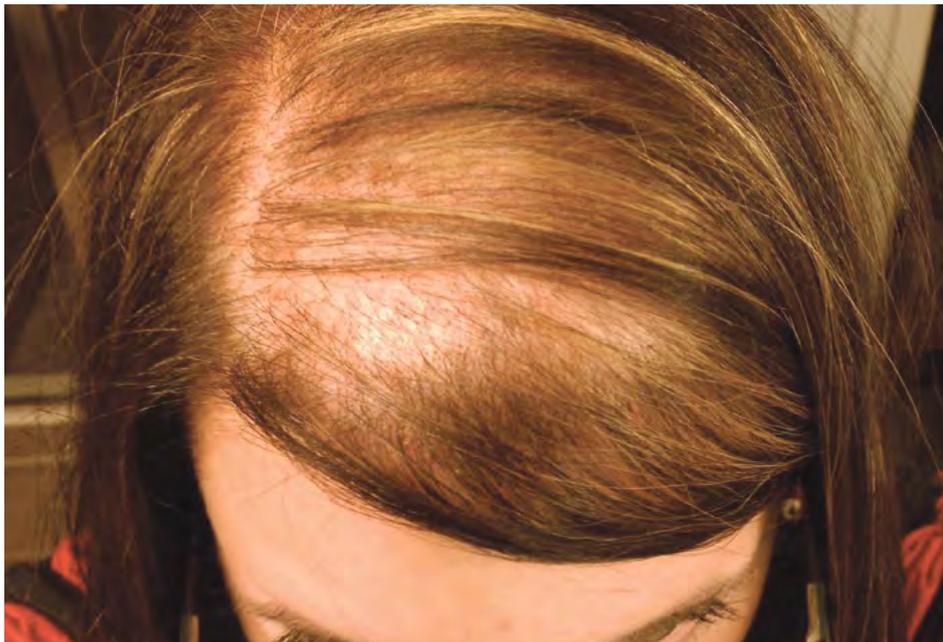

- 1 T/Gel Therapeutic Shampoo Extra Strength. Neutrogena. ...
- 2 Psoriasis Medicated Shampoo + Conditioner. Dermarest. ...
- 3 SAL Shampoo. DHS Sal Shampoo. ...
- 4 5% Coal Tar Psoriasis Shampoo. PsoriaTrax. ...
- 5 Clinical Strength Seborrheic Dermatitis Treatment. Head & Shoulders

• A Deep skin treatment can be done at your salon using extra virgin olive oil. Packed with omega-3 fatty acids, olive oil may help reduce inflammation when applied to areas of the skin affected by psoriasis.

Thank you for your questions and I hope the answers have been beneficial to you.

I Look forward to reading and answering future questions.

Beth x

Q) WHY AM I LOSING MY HAIR?

A) Hair loss can be a result of genetic and hormonal factors also styling.

Genetic and hormone factors can occur when the hormones in our body which make hair follicles shrink, and stop growing, all dependent on a person's genes. The name given to this is Alopecia areata.

Alopecia areata is the most common form of alopecia, a disorder that causes your hair to come out. Some people lose hair in small areas, others more. In some people hair is continuously falling out and coming back, in others it can come back permanently.

The main and often the only symptom of alopecia is hair loss. You may notice:

- Small bald patches on your scalp or other parts of your body.
- Patches may get larger and grow together into a bald spot

Recharge your batteries with the power of crystals

Crystals are minerals formed underground from three-dimensional repeating patterns of atoms.

The natural structure of the repeating patterns whilst they are growing allows them to store memory and energy. The perfect order of the lattice is due to the individual atoms and molecules being packed together as tightly as possible during formation. This stability ensures they react in characteristic, precise and predictable ways to a broad spectrum of energies, including sound, light, heat and pressure.

For example, when a quartz crystal receives a physical blow, or is rubbed or twisted, it builds up a tiny electric charge across some of the planes within the crystal. This is the Piezoelectric effect and one of its uses is powering watches. Billions of people use quartz every day, but few realize it because the tiny crystals they use are hidden in their watches and clocks.

But this is not their only use, because crystals also respond to bioelectricity and consciousness, i.e. thought and emotion.

The origins of crystal healing can in reality be traced back to around the year 5000 BCE, when the early Sumerians made beads of Obsidian and Carnelian, also using Lapis Lazuli and Carnelian combined with gold. Both men and woman wore these adornments in equal measure, believing that the crystals had special properties. They also wore crystals carved into amulets about their necks, believing the crystal would ward off evil spirits and give protection.

In the 1980s, with the advent of the New Age culture, the use of crystals and gemstones began to re-emerge as a healing method. Much of the practise was drawn from old traditions, with more information gained by experimentation and channelling. Books by Katrina Rafaell in the 80s, and Melody and Michael Gienger in the 90s, helped to popularise the use of crystals.

So much for the history. So what actually IS crystal healing?

Simply put it is a non-intrusive therapy using a holistic approach to wellness. Crystals are usually charged or programmed and placed on or around the body, typically pointing towards the areas that need help.

Rather than focusing on one ailment or issue at a time, crystal healing addresses the person as a whole, paying as much attention to spiritual and emotional well-being as to physical health.

It is the energy field that emanates from the energised crystals that can heal your body, spirit and soul. Crystals can heal independently, just through their own presence, or can be used with other modalities, such as Reiki.

Crystal healing is based on the premise that crystals can 'communicate' with the energies flowing around the human body. Every crystal has its own unique electromagnetic charge. These charges or 'healing vibrations' interact with the body's energy centres to remove blockages and restore a healthy flow through the meridians of the body and through the mind.

Crystal healing can take many forms, in that a variety of crystals and placements can be used. In this day and age though, a repeating complaint is stress and anxiety. This can arise from a blockage in the energy flow of the body, and a Chakra Balance can be used to restore balance and allow the proper flow of energy through the body, easing stress, tension, frustration and anxiety.

This takes the form of 7 crystals, their colours corresponding to the 7 chakra points, being placed upon the chakra points and so bringing the energy flow of the body back into balance.

So if you are feeling stressed, anxious, tense, frustrated or depressed, why not give the healing power of crystals a go? Pop in to, or call, VaVa yoga and let us recharge your batteries.

Also recognised as a powerful antiseptic and is famed for its ability to treat and heal wounds, due its natural anti-inflammatory properties.

The Aboriginals, native to Australia have used the Tea Tree leaves for their healing properties, and aside from making tea infusions with the leaves and inhaling the soothing scent, the essential oil has been used to treat cough and colds. # What's the problem?

At the Advertiser magazine, we recognise that everyone needs to reach out for advice now and then. Seeking the help of someone who can not only offer a completely objective point of view but, is also qualified to advise you, may not always be possible. We are delighted to be able to offer the services of a qualified counsellor and psychotherapist, Theresa Wood, to answer any of our readers issues or problems.

Hi Theresa

A few years ago I decided to sell my house as my husband had died and we didn't have children. My Brother told me about a small bungalow next door to him and his family with a garden, which I love. So I downsized and bought the bungalow. I have always got on with my brother, he is a few years younger than me. The problem is that over the last couple of years, my brother keeps mentioning what will happen to my bungalow after I die. He is saying obviously he is my family so I will be leaving it to him, then he started saying I should sign it over to his son, who is in his early twenties to save him inheritance tax later. I have laughed it off and changed the subject when he has spoken about it, but yesterday, I was in my garden when he called around and I told him about ideas I had for a small structure. He became quite angry and said it was a stupid idea and I was being selfish not thinking about him and his son after I pass on. Am I being selfish?? Jeanie

Hi Jeanie

I'm so sorry this has happened to you. Your brother has overstepped his boundary. I would like you to reread that sentence. Your brother has overstepped his boundary. The reason I say his boundary and not yours is because it is abnormal to start believing you can decide what your sister/ neighbour does with their property. How to handle this is your difficulty. The next time your brother comments on your property/garden/plans, you might say 'How about we agree that you decide on what happens on your side of the hedge and I won't interfere and the same on my side of the hedge'. This reminds him that he wouldn't accept the same behaviour from you and makes it equal at the same time. Whatever he replies in objection you repeat the same line. If at any stage you feel maybe you are being unfair, ask yourself if you would allow the neighbours on the other side tell you what you can and can't do on your own property. If your brother decides to fall out with you over this at least you know it wasn't your friendship he was after. This is a form of coercive bullying, please don't allow it. Kind regards Theresa

We posted this question on a confidential facebook group. The answers we received were varied. Here are some of them...

No you are not being selfish. It's your property and what you want to do with it is up to you. Tell your brother you haven't decided what to do with your property or possessions yet and you aren't comfortable discussing this at this present moment in time. Hopefully he will back off and respect your choice. Sharon

Not selfish in the slightest!! It's YOUR home, paid for with YOUR money - do what makes YOU happy, you don't say how old you are but your brother sounds very mercenary - if you decided to leave it to a local charity instead then that's your prerogative, be happy in your own home and do what you want to it - explain this to your brother, if he loves you he'll understand. Debbie

Next time he approaches you on this subject, tell him he may die before you and to please stop harassing you and making you unhappy. Do you think he had a cunning plan all along and wanted to ensure his son would live near him? Elizabeth

You are not being selfish, and not at death's door, life is for living, you and your husband worked for everything you have, not your brother or his son. How you want to live, spend your money or dispose of your estate is completely up to you, not someone who has their own different agenda. I have four grown up children, not one of them have ever wanted my husband and I to hang on to a property or money for them to inherit when we die. Often they have told us, you have worked all your life, we don't expect anything when you are gone, you gave us everything while we grew up, so go spend it while you can. I also feel the same, and hope none of my family think I am waiting for them to pop their clogs to claim their assets. I would want them to have used everything to enjoy their life and fulfilled their dreams. Hilary

I think it is very clear that you are being thought of as a pension pot and not as family! Your brother is showing little respect for you, and your enjoyment of living there is only going to turn to sadness and resentment. Families change, and his loyalties are only for his children, and not you. I think it would be a better idea for you to sell your property, and move to a more friendly location, spend your money on yourself, and maybe consider selling your home to fund some well deserved travelling to enjoy the fruits of your labours instead of living next door to those who expect to inherit everything with no respect. Joyce

Sorry, but this brother is not a nice person. He is effectively bullying you. It's your house, you do with it as you wish. If you want to build, then build. If you want to sell up and move elsewhere then do so. If you want to leave everything to Battersea Dogs home, you can. It's not his business. Please do not enter a power of attorney with him and give him power over your money or social needs. Mandy

just for laughs

You Can Not Be Serious

June already! And Midsummer's Day is bearing down upon us with an inevitability similar to the turning of the tide.

As I sat peacefully cogitating this evidence of my previously undiscovered poetic side a thought struck me – this doesn't happen often, and when it does it is a surprise to me.

In fact it is such a surprise that the original thought is often lost in the unfamiliar flurry of brain activity caused by thinking.

However, on this occasion I managed to hang on to the thought. It took root and flourished, and I found myself musing on the subject of poetry in general.

Compared to some, I am a Philistine where the Arts (in this case poetry) are concerned. I like my poetry to have a clearly defined theme; I'm not a fan of poetry that needs explaining, I like to know where I am with it. I like it to go from A to B, to have a beginning, a middle and an end.

Take William Wordsworth for instance; the one about daffodils is one with which most of us are familiar, at least in part, if not in depth. Our Mr Wordsworth describes a scene with which we Brits will all be familiar – namely a lot of daffodils being gently blown about in a light breeze.

He likes that scene, he tells us. Then he goes on to say that if he's feeling a bit down he thinks about the daffodils, and it cheers him up.

Now that is good practical poetry. It paints a scene to which we can all relate – we've all seen daffodils, and they do look nice when they blow in the breeze.

He mentions that looking at the beauty of the scene made him happy, more happy than he had realised. He follows that with telling us that, if he's on his own and a bit depressed, he thinks about the daffodils and it cheers him up.

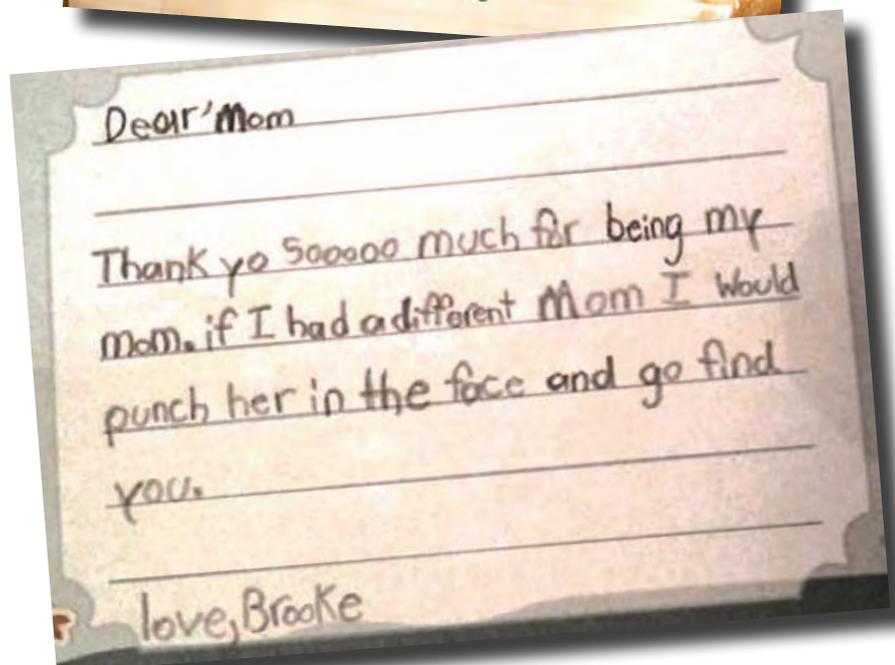

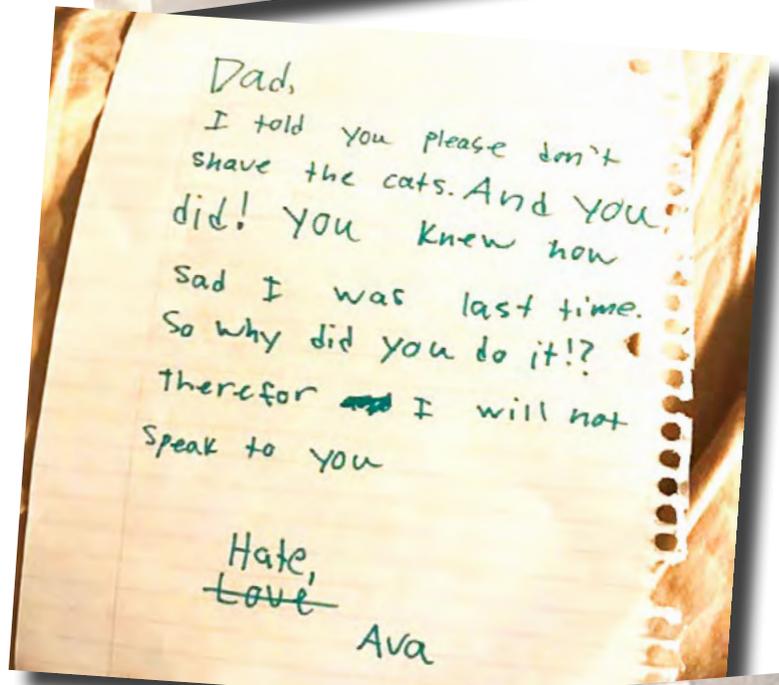

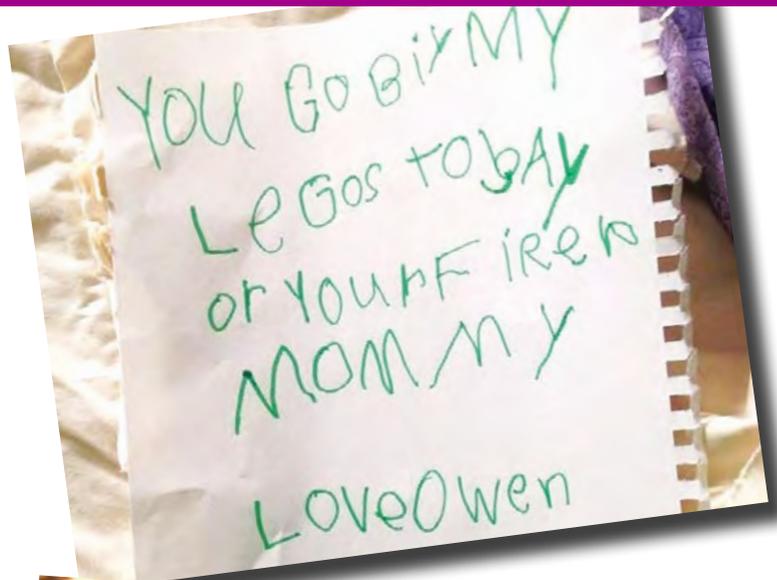

The poem is useful. It is not a whole load of incomprehensible and archaic words strung together for no known reason except for the poet's desire to baffle us. It has a purpose – to cheer us up.

There is probably a very technical term for what he proposes; namely 'think of something nice, it'll help.' Some people will pay a fortune to psychologists to be told this very thing!

And this he does in four verses. He doesn't go on and on about it, he gets the message across before his reader (me) has dozed off or lost interest.

Best of all – it rhymes! I always feel that poetry that doesn't rhyme is cheating!

- Jos Biggs

OUT AND ABOUT

Send in pictures of your event for publication to: advertisermojacar@gmail.com

The 2021 Vuelta a Andalucía Ruta del Sol began in La Cala, Mijas in Malaga on the 18th of May. The last stage of the race was Vera to Pulpí on the 22nd of May. It was the 67th edition of the Vuelta a Andalucía, and was rated as a category-2.Pro event on the 2021 UCI Europe Tour and the 2021 UCI ProSeries calendars. The race was originally scheduled for 17 to 21 February, but due to the COVID-19 pandemic, it had to be postponed to mid-May. As you will see from the photo above, the racers got off to a flying start at Las Buganvillas.

With live music restrictions still being in place when she planned her party, our lovely Jackie Miles Kirby decided to have a lip sync party. Jackie gives a massive thank you to all of her friends who dressed up, got into the swing of the party and lost their inhibitions while channelling their inner divas! The event took place at Reflections in Mojacar.

Environmental Issues

HURRAH! Summer weather has arrived and Covid regulations have relaxed quite a bit allowing CCA volunteers to get out and about cleaning beaches on foot and via kayak near Garrucha and Villaricos this month.

A collaboration with Victors Bar in Las Buganvillas saw the group receive 100€, kindly raised by an Easter raffle which was generously supported by their patrons. The money was used to reward the regular volunteers who give their time to clean up coastal areas which helps to raise awareness and to protect marine life. 19 volunteers received a lovely meal deal lunch which was very much appreciated after a very productive clean between Garrucha and Mojacar.

We also took photos of the WW2 bunker on the beach which is, inside, knee deep in plastic bottles and general rubbish and have passed them to local authorities. Although we would like to have left it clean ourselves it was decided that it is simply too dangerous and specialist equipment should be used in case of rats or hypodermic needles. I will keep you posted about developments.

The first kayak clean of 2021 was a fabulous day. The sea conditions couldn't have been better with a clear millpond sea and beautiful sunshine. A mixed group of newbies and more experienced kayakers set off from the old Guadia Civil building heading North and paddled 6km, stopping on route to clean a number of small bays and removing around 8 sacks of litter from the shore.

Many thanks to the staff and customers of Victors bar for the raffle money and to the volunteers of course. To take part in similar activities in the future, please keep an eye on the CCA facebook page events section. Sue Parmenter x

Editorial provided by Sue Parmenter from Coastal Cleaners Andalucía

Taking action against plastics, fishing paraphernalia and other litter on our beaches and coastline. We try to encourage a wide group of people to get involved through varied activities including litter picks, art, social gatherings and sports. In order to tackle the issue of prevention, our activities also include educational projects and workshops, focusing on building awareness and sharing information about alternatives.

Looking for her Furever Home

Scarlett

Big, beautiful Scarlett was found laying in the street with a broken and dislocated leg. Her puppies had disappeared. She has been operated on and is now pain free and slowly gaining strength and will be able to walk again. Scarlett is extremely friendly, loves companionship and cuddles. It would be wonderful if she could find a foster or "furever" home. Have you space on your sofa? For more information email: dogs@paws-patas.org

We are always in need of volunteers to help in so many different ways, even administration work which can be done from home. For further information please visit our website: www.paws-patas.org or email: info@paws-patas.org
