Welcome to the October issue of the Advertiser Magazine

This month I want to say a special thank you to all of our readers. We are planning some major changes at The Advertiser Magazine. It is our hope to keep the magazine fresh and interesting. This keeps readers picking up or downloading the magazine which in turn keeps advertisers interested.

While we have a list of new ideas ourselves, it would be remiss of us not to ask our readers and advertisers for their thoughts.

What would you like to see more of in this magazine? What changes would you like to see? Are there parts of the magazine that you don't particularly like?

Why not get in touch with us now and let us know your thoughts and ideas? ..from content to style and layout.

Thank you as usual to our wonderful team and contributors who work so hard every month to bring you The Advertiser Magazine. Please remember, if you have a bar or restaurant or are holding an event, you can send us your pictures for publication in the next issue of The Advertiser magazine.

All of our contact details in the yellow box on the right, please get in touch. Have a wonderful October everyone.

LifeStyle

The End of an Era

The passing of the Her Royal Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II on 8th September 2022 is a great loss of an elder stateswoman from the world. She will be missed by many.

She was born into the royal bloodline and associated privilege, but the exceptional poise and resilience she showed for a role that was thrust on her, it's hard for many not to respect her personally.

WOULD YOU PLAY SWAPSIES?

Have a think about this? Would you trade places with her life for yours? That's 70 years of living in the lime-light. 70 years of photos, being talked about, every move analysed, insulted and worst of all, having Charles, Andrew and the other one as sons!

Sure, you get every 8-year old's dream of living in a palace and having butlers and servants. You never have to do daily chores, you get invited to all the best parties and you can tell the Prime Minister what you really think of Brexit. Although, I'm not sure the furniture, like teapots and teacups are going to be singing and dancing for you – that's a Disney palace.

My reign would more resemble King Richard II, swiftly turning the nobility against me and re-assigning jobs to my mates. I'd get Shakespear to write favourably about me before killing or exiling anyone in my way. But at least there's no violent sacking and massacring a town's inhabitants, like Ivan the Terrible! That's terrible, Ivan.

GREAT STORIES

Apparently when a Saudi Arabian royal was visiting the UK, and with the Saudi law that discriminates against women from driving, the Queen was a little annoyed. As the story goes, she offered to show him around her Balmoral estate.

The Saudi Royal sat in the Landrover and awaited for the driver and HRM to join him, when without a word, the Queen sat in the driver's seat and proceeded to hightail it around the estate at speeds of up to 90 km/h, completely terrifying the Saudi.

Another is that Queen Liz would often walk around Balmoral and the surrounding countryside, only with a single body-guard and dressed like an average Joanne. One day she was stopped by an pair of American tourists who started an impromptu conversation. The chatty stranger asked her where she was from, to which the Queen replied that she did in fact live in London, but would take her holidays there.

The tourist, realizing the close proximity of a royal residence asked if she had even met the Queen. She replied without missing a beat that, no, she hadn't met her, but pointed to her bodyguard and said that he does regularly!

The bodyguard, when quizzed what the Queen was like, retorted that she could be a bit cantankerous at times, but she had a lovely sense of humour. To top it off, the tourists husband handed HRM a camera and asked her to take a photo of them and the bodyguard!

So while now we wait to see what type of King Charles III will become, I'm sure there will be a lot of people starting to wonder if now is the time to remove the Monarch from their constitution (looking at you, Australia!).

If you have any feedback for me, to dispute, argue, agree, support, harass or to pinch, flick me an email bradh_os@hotmail.com

Bon Appetit

Well, who can believe it's October already! Too early for the C word? Not when it's time to get your Christmas cake made. I've been using this recipe for 25 years and will be serving it at our Christmas Teas this December.

This will make an 8 inch round cake which you can either decorate with nuts and glace fruits or marzipan and icing.

INGREDIENTS

- 325g raisins
- 225g sultanas
- 175g currants
- 150g glace cherries halved
- 50g mixed peel
- 50g flaked almonds
- 2 tsp coarsely grated lemon rind
- 2 tbsp lemon juice
- 3 tbsp brandy
- 250g plain flour
- 250g softened butter
- 200g dark brown soft sugar
- 65g ground almonds
- 2.5 tsp mixed spice
- 1.5 tbsp black treacle
- 4 eggs

METHOD

The day before you plan to bake your cake into a large bowl put the dried fruit, cherries, peel, flaked almonds, lemon rind and juice and the brandy mix really well then cover and leave to sit overnight.

The next day when you are ready to bake sift the flour and mixed spice into a separate large bowl. Add the ground almonds, sugar, softened butter, treacle and eggs. Mix together with a wooden spoon then beat for 1-2 minutes until smooth & glossy. Alternatively beat for 1 minute using an electric mixer. Gradually add the mixed fruit and fold into the mixture until all the fruit is evenly blended.

To prepare your cake tin, line the sides and the bottom with 4 layers of baking parchment. Spoon the mixture into the prepared tin and spread evenly. Smooth the surface with the back of a metal spoon, making a slight depression in the centre.

Bake the cake in the centre of the oven preheated to 140 degrees for around 3 hours, low and slow is key here. This will vary depending on your oven. 30 minutes before the end of cooking time insert a fine skewer into the the centre and if it comes out clean your cake is cooked. If not, continue to check at 15 minute intervals.

Allow the cake to completely cool in the tin. Once cooled, turn out of the tin but don't remove the parchment. Spoon 1.5 tablespoons of brandy over the top of the cooked cake and wrap in double thickness of foil.

Store in a cool dry place and after a month, spoon another tablespoon of brandy over the cake, allowing it to sink in. Then re-wrap and store as before until required.

October is world pasta month, not that I need an excuse, I could eat spaghetti every day and, as Sophia Loren famously said "everything you see I owe to spaghetti" if that's not a good enough excuse to eat it, I don't know what is!

Here is my favourite tomato sauce which can be served with any style of pasta you prefer.

CLASSIC TOMATO SAUCE

The base of many a great pasta dish. I had to change my recipe based on the availability of ingredients when I moved to Spain but this works perfectly, in fact better than my original recipe

INGREDIENTS:

- Olive oil
- Medium white onion
- 3 cloves garlic finely chopped or crushed
- Can of chopped tomatoes
- 210 g carton of tomato frito
- 1/2 glass of red wine
- Plenty of freshly ground black pepper
- 2 bayleaves

METHOD:

Soften the onion and garlic in olive oil until translucent, taking care not to colour the onions. It's important to get them soft at this stage as they won't soften further once you add the tomatoes.

Stir in the Frito (fill the carton half full with water to get all the sauce out and add) cook for a couple of minutes. Add the tomatoes, pepper, bay leaves and wine, and leave to simmer on as low as possible for a good 40 minutes stirring occasionally.

Add a little water (or more wine!) if too thick. Serve on its own with some fresh basil leaves and parmesan, or use as a base for bolognese - the mince should be added and browned after the onions and garlic. Serve with pasta of your choice or the rest of the wine.

Beautiful You

Rebirth and renewal of faith.

They say that when one door closes, another one opens. What does that even mean? apart from you've probably got ghosts in your house! I know it is usually meant as a blanket to soften the changes that life thrusts upon us just like the rest of the old platitudes, "chin up, best foot forward, every cloud has a silver lining" etc. However just don't ever say any of these to someone who is hurting. It will only add to their mood and they will probably push you in front of a bus.

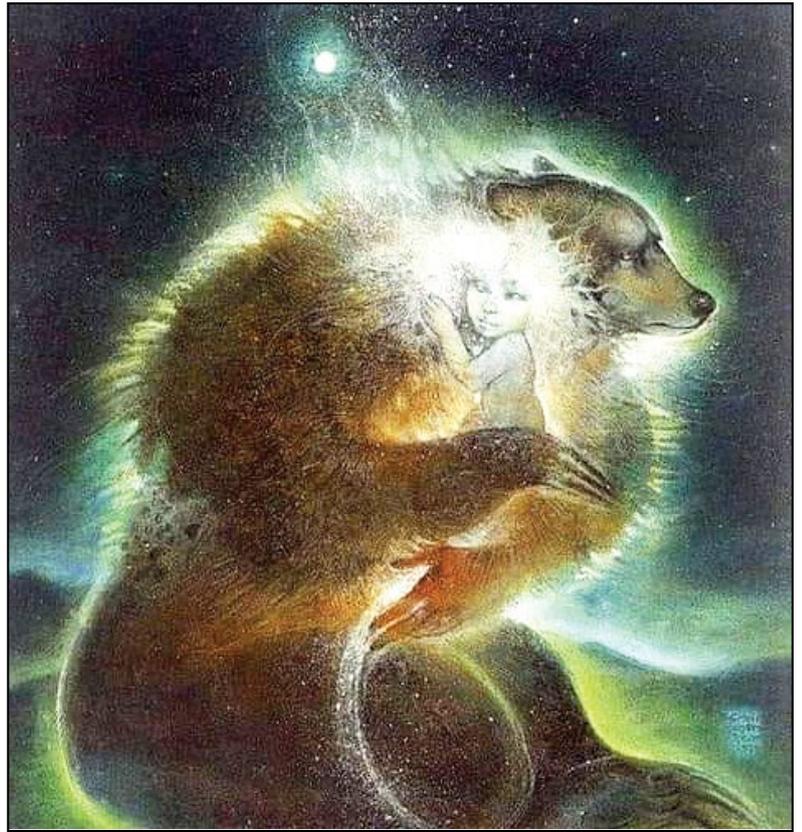

We always feel the need to say something, but consider this instead, say nothing except I am here if you want a hug, a cuppa, to talk or just silence. That is the best gift you can give.

We are uncomfortable when we don't know what to do or say and we want to fix it so that we can get back to the normal flow of life. But change IS the normal flow of life. Entropy is a fact of life and everything dies from the moment of its creation. Physics is the science of creation it seems.

What am I rambling on about, I hear you ask.

I have recently lost someone I loved dearly, and now have to carry on with my life and keep putting one foot in front of the other. I have found that all this does is trip me up, so I have tried keeping my chin up, and I trip over the pavement while looking forward. So from now on I am going to do whatever I feel like doing, whenever I want to. I am allowing myself to be sad when I feel sad, the relationship I lost is worthy of mourning. I may be happy for a while and then sad for a while and life will carry on as it does. I decided to move to a new home, in a new village and make new memories. The move itself has been an exercise in decluttering and streamlining my possessions, although those helping me carry the boxes would beg to differ!

I have always enjoyed making a home, creating a warm safe welcoming space for my friends and clients to enjoy and this time I will be able to distract myself with soft furnishings and lighting for a while. Leroy Merlin will become my therapist for a while and I will be found wandering around the plumbing department searching for a large shower head as if I know anything about these matters. I have need of a plumber, an electrician or just a boy scout jack of all trades so I don't fry myself with light fittings!

I have taken a lovely place, in a wonderful community. I am surrounded by lovely people and best of all, there are plenty of shops and bars withing walking distance. I am really looking forward to meeting some new people and making new friends. Thankfully I have no fear of change.

So if you see me with an afro hairdo, know that I touched the wrong wire, paint in my hair will show you the colour of the lounge, and chipped nails will show you that the place has been scrubbed and is safe to eat in ha ha!

I will still be doing my readings and workshops and will be offering classes on psychic development. Tarot card reading is another class that I will be offering throughout the autumn and winter months as a weekly event. So watch this space. Onwards and upwards biff and all that tosh! Take care of yourselves and be kind to each other. That is my favourite thing in the world. Kindness.

Welcome to your monthly hair dot com

By Beth Underhill

Each month I am looking forward to sharing my knowledge of hair care with you. As a Vocational Trainer and Assessor for the examiners SCOTVEC and a salon owner for over 30 years, my passion is the science of hair and how to respect it using salon chemicals.

I will be giving you some useful tips and advice on how you can protect and care for your hair and how to make the most of your crowning glory.

Q) WHY IS MY HAIR FALLING OUT?

A) There are lots of reasons why this can occur, a change in temperature puts stress on the scalp and follicles. Hair loss or seasonal hair loss can impact both men and women and is caused by many different factors, from sun exposure to dehydration. Exposure to sunlight also causes our bodies to produce less of the hormone melatonin, which affects the hormone levels in your scalp. It signals hair follicles to carry out their natural shedding phase for longer than usual. Because dehydration, UV exposure and heat can all play a part in hair loss, it's normal for some people to experience greater hair loss in the warmer weather.

You could experience extra hair shedding in the autumn. We typically shed up to 100 hairs a day but during August and September we can shed up to 150 hairs a day. When the weather is warmer, our bodies search for ways to conserve energy and keep us cool. Hair insulates our bodies, so when we're already hot, our bodies don't expend energy growing more hair.

Research has shown that resting follicles shed their hair in preparation for regrowth, suggesting shedding can last well into autumn.

However, if you're losing significant amounts of hair, the cause may be beyond seasonal.

Male pattern baldness starts with recurring hair loss over the crown and female pattern baldness, hair loss tends to be diffuse to begin with, with larger bald patches eventually occurring around the temples and the crown.

If you're worried that your hair loss is permanent rather than seasonal, seek the help of a professional hair loss consultant.

Hair growth is influenced by a number of factors, including nutrition, genetics, medical conditions, hormones and even stress. A deficiency in vitamins and minerals is important for normal cell growth and function may contribute to hair loss.

It can be distressing to learn you're suffering from hair loss, but there are many treatments out there for stimulating hair growth and restoring lost hair.

If you struggle with hair loss or hair thinning, it also might be worth talking to your doctor about whether a zinc supplement could be right.

Zinc is a trace mineral and only needed by the body in small amounts. It's small but mighty, and plays a role in everything from the growth of cells to creating DNA. "Low levels of zinc have been associated with hair loss and poor wound healing, I would recommend eating zinc-rich foods, like meat, beans, nuts and seeds.

The best vitamins for hair growth include B vitamins, vitamin D, vitamin E, zinc, biotin and iron.

Thank you for your questions and I look forward to hearing more from you.

What's the problem

At the Advertiser magazine, we recognise that everyone needs to reach out for advice now and then. Seeking the help of someone who can not only offer a completely objective point of view but, is also qualified to advise you, may not always be possible.

We are delighted to be able to offer the services of a qualified counsellor and psychotherapist, Theresa Wood, to answer any of our readers issues or problems.

Dear Theresa

My wife's cousin has come to stay with us. It was supposed to be just a few days until he could get home to the UK. His girlfriend left him here after a row. My wife loves this cousin and she said they've always got on great. I don't mind him but the excuses as to why he's still here are getting a bit thin. When I come home from work they're sitting facing each other laughing on the sofa. I have to go to bed early because I'm up early for work. They stay up drinking and watching Netflix. Do you think I should tell my wife I want him out?

Thanks David

Hi David

You are having a difficult time just now. It sounds like your wife is enjoying her cousin's company. It probably reminds her of her childhood. You don't say if you've broached the subject with your wife or her cousin, just that the excuses are wearing thin. If you've broached the subject and got no response from either, then perhaps you should leave it until your wife decides to address it with her cousin.

If you haven't broached it, ask yourself what is it that you are feeling hurt or angry about? It would be useful to know this before speaking to your wife, but be honest if you do, for example if you are feeling a bit left out or jealous, then admit this, it might make all the difference to your wife's understanding of your perspective. Good luck.

Theresa

We posted this question on a confidential facebook group. The answers we received were varied. Here are some of them...

Yes. You should tell your wife that you want him out, but in a nice way. Say that you think he should go home and get on with his life as he's clearly healed from the row with his girlfriend. Everyone has to heal and then progress and move on. Mention that you feel uneasy with him being there so long and would prefer him gone. What would your wife feel if you were doing the same with a female cousin? Say you will help him book his flight home as the time has come. Do not give an ultimatum as you may not like the response. She may side with him. Stay friends over this as it's family.

Janice

Yes you should tell your wife how you feel, but do it kindly.

Netty

Do you think your wife might be lonely when you are working so much and then going to bed early? It might be a good idea to look at a new lifestyle for you and your wife. Life is too short; it should be you and your wife sat up laughing and drinking and enjoying your time together. Work to live, not live to work. But it's time her cousin went home. Maybe if you both got part time jobs to pay the bills you could have more time together. Isabella

You should tell him "It's time to move on. Your life cannot stay on hold for ever as that does nobody any good mentally, physically or emotionally. With that mind, we need to get you a flight booked. Let's look together now and get it sorted so you can begin to make plans for your future."

Suzanne

Am I the only one that thinks that it is the wife's behaviour that is the problem? It is not the fact of the cousin being there, although he should probably move on, but the fact that she is behaving like an irresponsible teenager.

(I guess this is just one reason why I don't write a problem page!)

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Who are Vera & District Lions?
We are a self funding, non profit, worldwide aid organization.

Where are you? We are based at our Shop in Turre next to restaurant Los Angeles and we are open Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 10am to 2pm.

What do The Lions do? We help EVERYONE in our local community whatever their need, in times of hardship. All cases go to a committee vote and we take action from there.

How do we help the community? We help the food bank with fuel for collection of food from the Central food Bank in Almeria and from agricultural companies, farmers and others who donate to them on a weekly basis. Approximately 1000 families are being helped in our area at this moment in time. For the Children's home in Vera. We have helped with furniture, computers, bedding and much needed outings for the children.

We regularly help Asprodalba, an organization in Vera who help adults with learning difficulties. We have donated to the newly built pool by funding the wheelchair access. We have provided a kitchen to enable pupils to learn to cook for themselves. We also helped with the funding of the residential build .

On a daily basis we help with transport to and from hospital for local people with various health issues who cannot drive themselves or we cover petrol costs where needed. We donate to the red cross to enable them to buy food for the needy and regularly help Stepping Stones the Alzheimer's support group .

We recycle prescription glasses to send overseas to 3rd world communities.

We loan mobility equipment for a donation (where possible)

How you can help us to help your community:
We need more volunteers for the shop and our fund raising events. The van for food collection has died so we need sponsorship to buy a reliable second hand one. This is extremely important to one of our biggest beneficiaries, the food bank. We also need cheap or free storage space for our larger equipment that we loan out. So if you can help or know someone who can help then we would be most grateful.

What are the upcoming fundraising events?

Upcoming events to raise funds are:

ROCKTOBERFEST

October 9th - See poster opposite.

JINGLE BELL BALL

11th December which will be held at the Irish Rover.

HIPPY FESTIVAL

21st May 2023 at Yemaya, Mojacar Playa.

PARTY IN THE PARK

April 30th 2023 at Recinto El Palmeral, Vera
