The Advertiser Magazine

Welcome to March's issue of the Advertiser Magazine

This month sees the third-year anniversary of the time our lives changed forever. As we approach the upcoming Spring season, I cannot help but reflect back to that time in March 2020 when we honestly believed that a two-week lockdown would thwart the spread of the virus. The first case of COVID-19 in Spain was reported on January 31, 2020, in the island of La Gomera, in the Canary Islands. Since then, the virus has spread rapidly throughout the country with several "waves".

By mid-March 2020, Spain had become one of the hardest-hit countries in Europe. On March 14, the Spanish government declared a state of emergency and imposed a nationwide lockdown to try to contain the spread of the virus. The initial two-week lockdown was extended to almost ten weeks and the lockdown measures included the closure of schools, non-essential businesses, and public spaces such as parks and beaches. People were only allowed to leave their homes for essential activities such as buying food or seeking medical attention.

As the number of cases began to decrease, the Spanish government started to ease the lockdown measures in May. By June, most of Spain had entered into the so-called "new normality," with many businesses and public spaces reopening. However, there were still restrictions on gatherings, and face masks remained mandatory in public spaces until 20th of April 2022. In late July 2020, Spain experienced a surge in COVID-19 cases and the Spanish government responded by imposing localised lockdown measures in these regions, such as the closure of bars and nightclubs and by imposing curfews and restricting movement. By September, the number of cases had stabilised, and the government announced a new set of measures to control the spread of the virus, including limiting the capacity of public transportation and banning smoking in outdoor spaces.

Only last month, almost three years after the start of the pandemic, did the requirement to wear masks on public transport come to an end.

As of February 2023, Spain has reported over 9 million COVID-19 cases and over 120,000 deaths. The country has also administered over 70 million vaccine doses, with over 80% of the population fully vaccinated.

As we approach the third anniversary of the outbreak of Covid. I think it's important to see just how far we have come. While the pandemic has had a devastating impact on Spain, it is now time to look forward. Hopefully we can finally put this behind us. Just remember, please keep washing your hands! So, let's enjoy this spring and summer without restrictions. Be sure to attend as many events and parties as you possibly can and take all the trips you missed out on during the past few years. Have as much fun as you deserve! I know we plan to.

LifeStyle

Take no offence... you'll let the dog out!

This article is going to be controversial. I'm sorry if you're offended, but you're wrong. There, I said it...and your mum smokes fat cigars! The wrong way!

Are you ready? Motorhomes can park where ever a car can park. Oh wait, that's already the law! Yes, yes, of course I mean as long as it doesn't intrude on the thoroughfare, that's implied. Why are you being so antagonistic?

WHY THE HATE?

Everywhere I look online at the moment, there are people (my editor changed the original word here, it rhymed with glass bowls) complaining about campervans being parked up. According to some, they should all be fined or shot or fined and shot because they dare park in an otherwise empty carpark near the beach.

I saw a valid complaint the other day about one camper cleaning out his toilet into the sea. I think we all agree that this is repugnant, but this is also a 1 in 100,000 numpty behaviour. That figure maybe even higher as campervan enthusiasts are a classy bunch.

But from this post, every man and his dog jumped on and it was a feeding frenzy of un-vexed hatred with little argument set in logic. "Make them pay for everything", "Slash their tyres", "Barbecue his dog!"

A TRAVELLER'S LIFE

Now, I'm not saying that motorhomes and campervans should have free rein to park wherever they please. Of course not! They need to be responsible and respectful of public spaces. But let's also not jump to conclusions and assume that every camper is a littering, toilet-dumping, dog-barbecuing monster.

In fact, I would argue that campervan enthusiasts are some of the most responsible and conscientious travellers out there.

They're not the ones leaving plastic bottles and cigarette butts all over the beach. They're not the ones starting fires in the bushland. And they're definitely not the ones barbecuing dogs!

So, next time you see a motorhome parked up, take a deep breath and remember that we're all just trying to enjoy this beautiful world in our own way. Maybe you prefer to stay in a fancy hotel or a luxurious resort. That's great! But for others, there's nothing quite like hitting the road and exploring this vast and varied land of ours.

YOU CAN DO IT TOO!

And who knows, maybe one day you'll find yourself behind the wheel of a campervan, cruising down the highway with the wind in your hair and a smile on your face. Maybe you'll even empty your toilet in a natural waterway. Numpty.

In conclusion, let's all try to be a little more understanding and tolerant of our fellow travellers, no matter how they choose to explore this wonderful world of ours. And let's remember that sometimes, the best way to experience life is from behind the wheel of a motorhome. So take no offence, let the dog out, and hit the road!

GARDEN SNIPPETS

Growing tomatoes in Southern Spain can be an enjoyable and rewarding experience, but it does require some knowledge and care to ensure a successful harvest. Tomatoes are such an integral part of our Mediterranean diet that, if you manage to master this, you can eat well and save a considerable amount of money.

One of the first things to consider when growing tomatoes in Southern Spain is the climate. The region has a hot and dry climate, which can be ideal for growing tomatoes as long as you provide them with plenty of water and protection from the intense sunlight. To keep your tomato plants hydrated, it's important to water them frequently and deeply, especially during the summer months when temperatures soar. Be sure to water the plants early in the morning or in the evening to prevent the water from evaporating too quickly.

Another important factor to consider when growing tomatoes in Southern Spain is soil quality. The soil in the region can be quite sandy and low in nutrients, so it's important to enrich the soil with compost or other organic matter before planting your tomato seedlings. This will help to improve soil fertility and provide your plants with the nutrients they need to thrive. In terms of planting, it's important to choose a spot that receives plenty of sunlight and is sheltered from strong winds. Tomatoes are a warm-weather crop, so they need to be planted in a location that gets at least six hours of direct sunlight each day. If you're planting in the ground, it's a good idea to add a layer of mulch around the base of the plants to help retain moisture and keep the soil cool.

When it comes to caring for your tomato plants, there are a few things to watch out for. One of the most common issues with tomato plants is blossom end rot, which is caused by a calcium deficiency in the plant. To prevent this, it's important to ensure that your soil is properly fortified with calcium-rich materials such as bone meal or crushed eggshells. Another common issue is tomato blight, which is a fungal disease that can quickly spread and destroy your plants. To prevent blight, it's important to keep your plants well-ventilated and avoid getting water on the leaves.

In conclusion, growing tomatoes in Southern Spain can be a rewarding experience if you take the time to choose the right location, enrich the soil, and provide your plants with the proper care. With a little bit of effort, you can enjoy a bountiful harvest of juicy and delicious tomatoes all summer long. Enjoy; and please let me know how you get on.

Spring is in the air and thoughts turn to lighter options for supper. Living by the sea we are lucky to have an abundance of fresh fish on our doorstep and nothing is more tasty and easy to prepare than a nice fillet of sea bass. So here is oven baked sea bass served with patatas a lo pobre and a zingy salsa verde. In line with the zesty flavours, and also one of our most popular starter choices at La Meseta, chilli & lime marinated prawns with a mango salsa. Plus who can resist using the rest of the mango to make a delicious fool? Not me!

CHILLI AND LIME MARINATED PRAWNS WITH A MANGO SALSA

Ingredients:

8-10 large cooked prawns unpeeled
1/2 red chilli
1 lime
1/2 large mango finely diced
1/2 small red onion finely chopped
Handful of fresh chopped coriander (this can be substituted with parsley if preferred)

Method:

Peel and de-vein the prawns and place into a small bowl. Thinly slice and add the chilli plus the zest and juice of half the lime. Mix together and cover and leave to marinate in the fridge for at least 2 hours.

The salsa can also be made now and will sit happily in the fridge until ready to serve. Mix together the diced mango, chopped onion and coriander with the juice of the remaining lime half.

Cover and refrigerate.

To serve, divide the salsa between 2 plates and add the prawns on top and garnish with lime wedges

OVEN BAKED SEA BASS & PATATAS A LO POBRE

Ingredients:

1 to 2 sea bass fillets per person depending on size
2 large white potatoes sliced into 1/2 cm thick pieces - the skins can be left on
1/2 large red pepper sliced into strips
Medium white onion sliced then cut into half moons
Vegetable stock cube crumbled as finely as possible
Black pepper
Olive oil for roasting

Method:

Lay the sliced potatoes, onions and pepper in a shallow roasting tin and sprinkle over the stock cube and plenty of black pepper. Add around 3 tablespoons of olive oil and give it all a good mix - using your hands is easiest, then spread out evenly. Bake in the oven at 200 degrees for around 40 minutes or until the potatoes are cooked and starting to brown. At this point, the sea bass can go in and as it takes literally 10 minutes to cook, the potatoes will sit happily in the oven for this time.

To cook the sea bass lay a piece of tin foil on a baking sheet and lightly oil or butter it. Season your sea bass with salt and pepper and lay flesh side down on the foil. Then just 10-12 minutes in the hottest part of the oven.

Serve the fish on top of the potatoes and add a little salsa verde if desired.

SALSA VERDE

Ingredients:

4 tinned anchovy fillets in oil, drained
1 tablespoon capers in vinegar, drained
1/2 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
Salt and freshly milled black pepper

Method:

Chop the anchovy fillets as small as possible and crush them to a paste. Put the capers in a small sieve and rinse them under cold, running water to remove the vinegar they were preserved in. Dry them on kitchen paper and chop them as minutely as you can and add them to the anchovies.

Next, add the mustard, garlic, lemon juice and some freshly milled black pepper and mix well. Add the oil and chopped parsley mix again. Taste and add salt as required.

And finally mango & lime fool anyone? So quick and simple and not to mention utterly delicious!

MANGO & LIME FOOL

Ingredients:

1/2 diced ripe mango
Grated zest and juice of 1/2 lime
100ml double cream
2 tsp. icing sugar
Tablespoon Greek yogurt

Method:

Mix together the mango, lime zest and lime juice and add the icing sugar. Lightly whip the cream to very soft peaks, it will thicken when mixed with the lime and stir into the fruit along with the yoghurt. Continue to mix together until it is no longer sloppy. Check for sweetness and add a little more sugar if needed. Divide between serving dishes, I use cocktail glasses for this type of dessert and add a little lime zest to garnish. Can be served with a biscuit or 2 if desired.

STYLE

BY ANN WEBBER

FIND YOUR STYLE

After 50 years in the fashion industry I have learned so much about women. The fact is, most women are insecure about their bodies, and have low self confidence. Even when we were young and slim, we were never happy.

It's not about age or size, it's about feeling good. When someone looks at you, they see the whole picture, but when you see yourself, your eyes immediately go to the area where you have an issue. A good hair style and lipstick makes a big difference, also wearing a smile lifts you and the people you meet.

One thing I know for sure is, when you look good you feel good. The temptation is to go out and treat yourself to something new, without thinking how it will work with the rest of your wardrobe.

Big mistake!!! We end up with cupboards full of clothes that not only don't work together but do not make us feel good.

With this in mind, I started 'Style'. The concept is easy. 3-4 bottoms, 5 tops to each bottom (try to leave printed or patterned alone for your basic capsule). 2-3 dresses, flesh coloured underwear. Black or beige footwear for winter. Beige, gold or silver for summer. I absolutely love helping women find their style. It's so rewarding.

If you would like a complimentary consultation please contact me on Style by Ann Webber.

Welcome to your monthly hair dot com

By Beth Underhill

Each month I look forward to sharing my knowledge of hair care with you. As a Vocational Trainer and Assessor for the examiners SCOTVEC and as a salon owner for over 30 years, my passion is the science of hair and how to respect it using salon chemicals.

I will be giving you some useful tips and advice on how you can protect and care for your hair and how to make the most of your crowning glory.

Q) WHY DOES MY SCALP FEEL SORE TO TOUCH?

A) If you are not washing your hair often enough, this can contribute to your scalp hurting. Your hair won't get enough stimulation if you are not washing or brushing it regularly. This can cause a build-up of oil and flakes in your hair, which will irritate your scalp. I am always emphasising about not washing your hair too much as your hair's natural oils are washed away each time, however, twice or three times a week if your hair is starting to feel greasy and your scalp is sore is sufficient. I find that if my scalp is sore I like to massage my scalp before I wash it to bring all the oils down to the ends of the hair.

Q) WHY DOES MY WHITE HAIR LOOK SO YELLOW?

A) Grey or white hair, which contains little or no pigment, sometimes looks yellow because it picks up pigments from the environment, for example, if you use a yellowish shampoo or conditioner, rather than a clear one, a trace of the colour might be deposited onto your hair. Chamomile for example has a hint of yellow in it. Try using a clear shampoo.

Chlorine and other chemical residues in water, sunlight, and even oils from the scalp can also give grey or white hair a yellowish cast. So if your water is very chlorinated, install a water filter system in your shower, wear a hat when you are in the sun and be sure to wash your hair regularly.

Artificially coloured hair can also look yellow or even a hugh of orange because of the chemicals used to colour your hair. The two components used in colouring hair are 1) the colour pigment and 2) an oxidant. The two components are mixed together. The oxidant will open or swell the cuticle of the hair to allow the colour pigment to enter the cortex. The cortex contains a protein called melanin, this is the natural colour as you see it. The melanin will oxidise leaving the pheomelanin (2nd protein) on show, pheomelanin is a protein which lies under the melanin and can be yellow to orange in colour. Hence, this is what you are seeing once the artificial colour has washed out from your hair after a few weeks.

Q) WHY IS MY HAIR STARTING TO GROW CURLY?

A) Your hair may become curly with age, as we age we lose the colour pigment in our hair, this pigment gives the hair weight, keeping the hair straighter but as the colour starts to disappear the hair starts to curl. You could have inherited both straight and curly hair genes from your parents. Some of these genes can be inactive at birth but then become turned on by hormones, ageing or other factors including medication, nutrition, stress or illness.

I hope you have found these answers helpful. I look forward to many more questions in the future.

What's the problem

At the Advertiser magazine, we recognise that everyone needs to reach out for advice now and then. Seeking the help of someone who can not only offer a completely objective point of view but, is also qualified to advise you, may not always be possible.

We are delighted to be able to offer the services of a qualified counsellor and psychotherapist, Theresa Wood, to answer any of our readers issues or problems.

Hi Theresa

Im embarrassed to admit this but I have been really struggling lately with the cost of everything. I know everyone is complaining, but they all seem to still be living as they were before all this. I'm not eating breakfast or lunch so my kids don't go without. Then I'm buying treats for my kids which I can't afford because I feel so guilty. I'm feeling depressed and as though I don't fit in anywhere anymore. I just needed to tell someone.

Sorry Linda

Hi Linda

The first thing I can say is please don't apologise. It's lovely to hear from you. I'm so happy you have reached out. This means you are already half way there in coming up with a solution. On a practical level you are operating through guilt and embarrassment, which leaves you feeling terrible, but you still have the problem. If you can opt for action, this will energise you. Get your kids together and say you want their help with a new plan, tell them that you are wasting money on electricity etc that you would like to spend on days out instead. Tell them that however much they can save on your next bill by turning things off and unplugging everything (not the fridge) will be used to have a day out of their choosing. This may seem like you won't be saving anything, but by training them to look out for unnecessary waste of electricity, it means you will cutting down costs forever. Then sit down yourself and plan every breakfast, lunch and dinner for you and the kids for a week. Look at good value good food, not frozen convenience foods that are not filling, are full of sugar and leaves the kids starving an hour later. If you plan your meals you can see how you can use several ingredients across multiple meals. You must include yourself and eat properly for your physical and mental health. You also need to visit your Doctor and tell them how you've been feeling so they can also offer some support. If you are in trouble with bills etc, contact the companies immediately with a low weekly payment plan and then stick to it. Don't offer unrealistic payments that you won't be able to keep up. By choosing action you will automatically start to feel more in control. Please let us know how you get on.

Best wishes

Theresa

We posted this question on a confidential facebook group.

The answers we received were varied.

Here are some of them...

Sit the kids down but don't go into deep detail. We had nothing but love some days but, we didn't grow up stunted or angry. Please ask for help from local charities who are only happy to provide some basics, with the odd treat. You deserve this as do your kids. Xx

Netty

I think you need to discuss this with your children. Get them involved in the saving money project. Before going food shopping, make a meal plan for each and every meal. Sometimes you can save a lot by buying a larger pack of a product and then using it for multiple meals. Batch cooking saves a fortune not only on the food products but also on your energy bill and your time. If mince is on offer, buy lots and make meatballs and burgers and a chilli and maybe even a stir fry with it. Apart from anything else you will be teaching your kids the ability to budget and recognise essentials from treats and this is a very strong tool that will see them through life. Best of luck to you.

Sam

Your kids will understand... explain to them. They'd rather have a happy mum. They will know you are worrying. Change everyone's breakfast to affordable options. Check out Martin Lewis' site for ways to cut back to ease the finances. So many people are in the same position as you. Xxx

Sarah

Batch cook frozen veg, it is as good as fresh. Less meat and more beans and pulses to bulk out meals. Sending big hugs to you xx

Brenda

You need to eat breakfast. Mums need to be healthy! Instead of buying treats for your children, treats can be a walk to the park or baking some cookies or buns together. Play a board game after dinner, or a movie night, make homemade crisps for the movie night, or popcorn, something cheap but fun and tasty. Kids don't remember treats, but they remember playing games and baking with mum.

Julie

It's time to sit your children down and tell them how things are. Explain that treats, for a while, are off the agenda and it is more important that you all have nutritious meals, they don't have to be expensive. For breakfast, cereal or porridge or toast with a hot drink is acceptable. There are plenty of suggestions in the media. Include your kids in all the decisions. They often see things clearly and simply. Remember things will get better.

Susan

This echoes my childhood and we are talking early 1950s here, it's unbelievable and appalling that mum's don't eat so their children can. Please eat, it ruined my mum's digestion and she became chronically anemic. There must be a food bank near you that can help? I heard that in UK (there is no indication as to where you are) that the big supermarkets are selling bags of random food very cheaply late in the day. Investigate that.

Book Review

"The Murders at Fleat House" is a captivating murder mystery novel written by the acclaimed author, Lucinda Riley who, happens to be one of my all-time favourite authors. Set in the picturesque countryside of Norfolk, the novel is a suspenseful and utterly compelling crime novel that begins with the death of a pupil at a private boarding school. Although initially assumed to be a natural death police suspicions are aroused and they cannot rule out foul play. As the body count rises, almost everyone becomes a suspect.

In "The Murders at Fleat House," Lucinda Riley showcases her storytelling skills with a thrilling plot that keeps readers on the edge of their seats. The characters are well-developed, and their relationships are complex, which adds depth to the story. The author's use of vivid descriptions creates a vivid picture of the setting, making readers feel as though they are right there in the midst of the action. Throughout the novel, Lucinda Riley keeps readers guessing with clever twists and turns that keep the story exciting. The characters' motives and backgrounds are slowly revealed, adding depth to the plot. The novel's climax is particularly thrilling, with the murderer's identity being revealed in a dramatic and unexpected way. Lucinda's early career was in film, theatre and television, she played Tracy Busbridge the daughter of Bomber Busbridge in Auf Wiedersehen Pet. The author is probably best known for her series "The seven Sisters" which became a global phenomenon. She was born in Ireland in 1965 and sadly passed away in June 2021. Lucinda wrote her first book when she was twenty-four years old. The Murders at Fleat House, written in 2006 but only just published, was Lucinda's first and only foray into crime thriller. Since her untimely death Lucinda's son, Harry Whittaker has taken on the colossal task of completing the novel "Atlas" which is the final in the "The seven sisters" series. Atlas is due for release this spring. Lucinda's son, Harry Whittaker, came across "The Murders at Fleat House" which had been completed but never published and he decided to publish it, as Lucinda has originally written it. Although this book is her only crime novel, Lucinda has an amazing talent in this genre. It is a great pity that she never wrote crime again and the world has lost a fantastic author.
